PROCEEDINGS OF THE AMERICAN PHILOSOPHICAL ASSOCIATION OF 1943

SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF OFFICERS

American Council of Learned Societies

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Council was held in New York at the Hotel Pennsylvania on January 28 and 29, 1943. The Association was represented by its delegates, Professors G. R. Morrow and C. J. Ducasse, and by the Secretary of its National Board, Professor Cornelius Krusé. Other members of the Association also present were Dean R. P. McKeon, in his capacity as delegate of the Mediaeval Academy of America, and Dean G. H. Sabine, as member of the Advisory Board of the Council. Members of the Association who occupy places on committees of the Council are Dean R. P. McKeon, Committee on the History of Ideas, and Chairman of the Committee on Research and Teaching Personnel; Professor H. W. Schneider, Committee on the History of Religions; J. H. Randall, Corresponding member, Committee on Renaissance Studies; and T. M. Greene, Chairman of Committee on Educational Trends and the Humanities. A report by this committee has recently been published under the title Liberal Education Reexamined; Its Role in a Democracy (Harper's.)

Reports were presented by the Director, Dr. W. G. Leland, and by other members of the executive staff of the Council, on the activities of the Committees of the Council, on projects sponsored by the Council, and on advisory services rendered by the Council to the Government.

Members of the Association may be reminded that the Council makes grants in aid of publication of scholarly works which it would not be practicable to publish commercially. A number of the works in the field of philosophy mentioned in the 1942 report as having been awarded such aid have since appeared. The council also makes grants in aid of research. Such a grant has been made to J. R. Weinberg in aid of a project entitled The Philosophy of Nicolaus of Autrecourt.

The 1944 meeting of the Council is to be held January 26 to 28 at the Westchester Country Club, Rye, New York.

Committees

Permanent Committee on Bibliography

The war has continued to make inopportune any further attempt by the Committee to obtain funds for the publication of the Bibliography of Philosophy for the years 1902-1932, which now exists in card-index form at Columbia University. Accordingly, the Committee can only suggest again this year that members of the Association in need of bibliographical information relating to that period request it from Mr. Emerson Buchanan of the Department of Philosophy at Columbia. The activities of the Committee for the year have consisted only in answering an occasional inquiry.

The war has of course entailed also cessation of the Committee's function as point of contact between the Association and the International Bibliography of Philosophy undertaken before the war by the Institut International de Collaboration Philosophique, which had its headquarters in Paris.

For the Committee,

C. J. DUCASSE, Chairman

Publication Committee

Professor Gregory D. Walcott, General Editor of the Source Books in the History of Science, has sent in the following report on his series:

After considerable discussion, the decision was reached to withhold from publication the manuscript, A Source Book in Greek Science, until after the war. This was regrettable but apparently unavoidable. Professor Allen of the University of Wisconsin has written that the major part of the manuscript for a Source Book in Botany is completed. During the past year he has been developing a list of "authors and citations" from the "literature on plant physiology". Since he is now emeritus, he "expects to get on much more rapidly with the work". Professor Smallwood of Syracuse University, who is preparing the manuscript for a Source Book in Zoology, has informed me that he is "now free from teaching and executive responsibility", since he has become emeritus, and that "this is the only task that he has agreed to undertake". He has submitted a list of "certain well known authorities" who have agreed "to assume responsibility for specific sections" and indicated that he will probably visit the University of Rochester, Washington, New York City, Boston, and New Haven, to get at certain bits of source material and for consultations. Dr. H. G. Fletcher, Jr., of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who has charge of preparing the manuscript for a Source Book in Chemistry, has written that he has been delayed a bit by the war, but that the work for this book is "about half done". He thinks, too, that he can now proceed "at a much better pace" with the work ahead. Professor Richard McKeon of the University of Chicago has not written me this fall, but when I saw him here in New York City last spring he told me that he keeps going over in his mind the probable material for a Source Book in Medieval Science and debates with himself as to the proper organization of the work. This gives a rather fair view of the status of the remaining prospective volumes of the series.

At the beginning of the year three applications to the American Council of Learned Societies for grants in aid of publication were under consideration by the Committee. Four other manuscripts came to us in the course of the year. Of these seven manuscripts, the Committee has recommended one for a grant in aid of publication; the two most recently received are still under examination by the Committee; and the others have been returned, either to the A. C. L. S. or to their authors. No information has yet been received as to the action taken by the A. C. L. S. on the manuscript recommended for a grant. Of the two applications for grants supported by the Committee which were pending at the time of our last report, one was denied by the A. C. L. S. Committee of Award at its meeting in January, and the other was withdrawn by the publishers concerned.

Again the Committee wishes to thank the outside readers who have given so generously of their time and effort to help us make a competent appraisal of the manuscripts submitted. The Committee, of course, assumes full responsibility for the final decision in each case.

For the Committee,

GLENN R. MORROW, Chairman

Commission on the Function of Philosophy in Liberal Education

In accordance with the responsibility laid upon the Commission by the Board of Officers of the Association, namely, "to reexamine thoroughly the nature and function of philosophy in higher education and in general culture, and to study ways and means of reorganizing the teaching of philosophy in order to make the contribution of philosophy to the post-war world most effective", the Commission is engaged in the extensive work of taking testimony from all who are in any way concerned with philosophy and education. Letters have been sent to all members of the Association requesting their views on the subject of inquiry. In addition, similar letters have gone to many persons in other fields of learning and other professions and walks of life, such as administrators, clergymen, men of affairs, public officials, and to foreign scholars resident in the United States. Notices were sent as well to the various journals of both philosophy and education, inviting communications from their readers. To these different letters and requests a generous response has come, offering interesting and valuable suggestions, criticisms, and comments. Besides collecting the evidence thus invited the Commission is availing itself of the data that had been gathered by previous committees of the Association or its divisions, such as the Western Division's Committee on the Role of Philosophy in Higher Education, the Eastern Division's Committee on the Teaching of Philosophy, and the Pacific Conference on the Teaching of Philosophy, organized under the auspices of the Pacific Division. The officers of these Committees have readily made available their reports and the results of their previous experience.

The Regional Conferences comprise a limited number of persons, usually not more than thirty-five in all. Besides the members of the Commission the Conferences are attended by invited members of the Association, and by those whose replies to the letters referred to seemed to offer something of particular interest for discussion, together with University administrators, representatives of adult education and Junior Colleges, public men, writers, and local citizens of standing who are recommended by resident scholars for their interest in philosophy and their possible contribution to the Conference.

Three sessions are held at each Regional Conference, two on the afternoon and evening of the first day and the third on the morning of the following day. The members have luncheon and dinner together on the first day; and usually all persons participating have been lodged in the same hotel or other quarters available. In the different places of meeting the University officers have extended hospitality and have taken part in the Conferences. Each meeting is opened by some representative of the locality in which the meeting is held. It is the policy of the Commission to hear the views of the members of the Regional Conference as these persons themselves present them. The evening meeting is usually devoted to the consideration of philosophy in its relation to the community at large.

The Commission has not brought forward proposals of its own before the Regional Conferences because it conceived its initial role to be that of receiving the information and judgment of the invited participants. Very early, however, in the preliminary discussions of the general problem, and after the examination of the first replies received to the letters requesting an expression of opinion, it became apparent that it would be helpful in order to initiate discussion to propose to the members of each Conference, merely as suggestions, the following questions:

1. What is the distinctive job of philosophy in the university? (Examples—What is the function of ethical and social philosophy as distinct from that of the social sciences? What is the function of philosophy as distinct from that of natural science?)
2. In what ways, and under what conditions, can there be collaboration between teachers of philosophy and those of other professions who are concerned with the same field of inquiry or who have closely related purposes—as in religious education?
3. What is the role of philosophy in the defining, appraising or establishing of sanctions and standards of right thought, feeling, or action?
4. Do you think the needs of students, particularly in these times and in the years after the war, call for changes in the content or the emphases of present-day philosophical teaching? If so, what changes?
5. What, in your judgment, are the chief defects in the manner or matter of the teaching of philosophy now? In the present training of teachers of philosophy? What about the technicality of language? Specialization?
6. What is the relation of philosophy to science and literature in the formation of the educated mind?
7. In what ways can philosophy best work toward community of understanding and purpose in the postwar world?
8. What, in your judgment, are the most urgent social-moral issues of the present critical period? How and to what extent can these issues be met by philosophers?

After the work of the Commission shall have been completed, a report containing the findings of the discussions and other communications will be made to the officers of the Association; and it is expected that this report will be made public. It will contain the results of the Commission's studies of the place of philosophy in general education, in the college curriculum, and in graduate study, as well as its recommendations with regard to the preparation of teachers for these various educational spheres, and of the work that scholars in philosophy might do in order to contribute to the general intellectual and spiritual life of the community.

There is still time for members of the Association to send communications on any of the matters here mentioned, or on anything else they believe to be pertinent to the subject. The work of the Commission is only in progress, and further data and suggestions will continue to be welcome and useful.

For the Commission,

CHARLES W. HENDEL, Secretary

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Year ended December 31, 1943

*The American Philosophical Association
Middletown, Connecticut*

We have examined the accounts and records of Cornelius Krusé, Secretary-Treasurer, for the year ended December 31, 1943.

Recorded receipts were verified and compared with bank deposits and all expenditures were evidenced by cancelled checks and supporting vouchers.

Cash balances at the end of the period were confirmed to us directly by the depositories and Government Bonds on file for safe keeping were inspected at the Middletown National Bank of Middletown, Connecticut.

Based upon the foregoing, we hereby certify that the attached statement of receipts and disbursements reflects the results of the financial operations for the year ended December 31, 1943.

Report of the Secretary of the Board of Officers

In accordance with the continued request of the Office of Defense Transportation, no Divisional meetings were held in 1943. In consequence, no presidential addresses are published in this year's Proceedings.

Early in the year the National Board of Officers voted to create a Commission on the Function of Philosophy in Liberal Education, and entrusted it with the task "to reexamine thoroughly the nature and function of philosophy in higher education and in general culture, and to study ways and means of reorganizing the teaching of philosophy in order to make the contribution of philosophy to the postwar world most effective". The Board of Officers, after having requested each Division to nominate a panel of ten members of the Association for this Commission, elected the following to serve on this Commission: Brand Blanshard, C. J. Ducasse, Max C. Otto, Arthur E. Murphy, Chairman, Charles W. Hendel, Secretary. The American Philosophical Association received a generous grant from the Rockefeller Foundation in aid of the work of this Commission. Regional meetings with philosophers have been, or will be, held in Chicago, San Francisco, New Orleans, Baltimore, New York, and Boston.

In the last report reference was made to the fact that, on account of the lack of sufficient transportation facilities between the United States and the other American Republics, the First Inter-American Congress of Philosophy, which was to have been held at Columbia University in December 1942, was postponed indefinitely. By taking advantage, however, of the presence in this country of a number of Latin American philosophers and scholars in fields related to philosophy, a small but significant Inter-American Conference of Philosophy was held on April 30 to May 1 in the Hall of Graduate Studies of Yale University. Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela, were represented. The following program was presented:

Friday, April 30th

Welcome by the President of Yale University.

4:00 P.M. Session I.

Contemporary Latin-American Thought.
The Arts, Sciences, and Philosophy.
Social and Political Thought.
Tendencies within Philosophy.

8:30 P.M. Session II.

The Interrelations of American and European Thought.
European and North American Influences in Latin America.
Phenomenology.
Differences of Interest and Tendency.
The Significance of Latin America for Western Culture.

Saturday, May 1st

9:30 A.M. Session III.

Value and Existence.
Values, Norms, and Ideals.
The Objective Character of Values.
Values in Art, Literature, Law, and Politics.

2:00 P.M. Session IV.

The Philosophy of Culture.
Forms of Philosophical Anthropology.
The Role of Philosophy in Education and General Culture.

At this Conference it was voted to convene further Conferences of this sort during the war and to proceed with the plans for the Congress as soon as possible after the war. The Special Program Committee of the American Philosophical Association for this Conference were the following: Charles W. Hendel, Chairman, Herbert W. Schneider, Cornelius Krusé, Secretary, Miss Montalva Flores, Assistant to the Chairman. The complete Proceedings of the Conference are published in a special issue in the first number for 1944 of Philosophy and Phenomenological Research.

The Secretary of the Board of Officers was invited by the Coordinator's Office for Inter-American Affairs to engage under its auspices in a cultural mission to Latin America for the purpose of establishing closer relationships with philosophers in Latin America. Accordingly, the Secretary spent five months (June 1 to November 1) in the principal countries of Latin America, in close consultation with Latin American philosophers, with many of whom contacts had previously been made in connection with the attempt on the part of our Association to organize the First Inter-American Congress of Philosophy. The Secretary expressed to philosophical groups and numerous individual philosophers the keen desire of our Association to enter into closer relationship with Latin American philosophers, who, in their turn, reciprocated by expressing everywhere the greatest interest in establishing closer contacts with North American philosophers, and in coming to learn more about North American philosophy. Since hitherto the orientation of Latin American philosophers has been to Europe almost exclusively, it was gratifying to learn of their awakened interest in philosophical movements in North America.

In every center from Mexico City to Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro the Secretary was received with the utmost cordiality and was invited to speak on numerous occasions, usually under the auspices of the Facultad de Filosofía y Letras of the National University, on the History of North American Philosophy and Its Contemporary Developments. Everywhere the Secretary was charged to convey to the members of the American Philosophical Association the cordial greetings of Latin American philosophers. Plans were discussed for making the philosophic thought of the two Americas better known to North and South American philosophers, and for establishing permanent channels of intercommunication. The Secretary wishes to record his deep appreciation of the aid received in all centers by the Cultural Relations Officers attached to our Embassies in the countries visited.

During the absence of the Secretary, Arthur E. Murphy kindly agreed to act as Secretary of the Board of Officers.

The chairman of the Board of Officers, Donald S. Mackay, reappointed R. W. Sellars and F. S. C. Northrop as members of the Publication Committee for four-year terms.

The Secretary has received through the Cultural Relations Division of the State Department an invitation from La Société d'Études Scientifiques of Port-au-Prince, Haiti, for members of the Association to participate in a Symposium on Epistemology, to be held in September 1944 in Port-au-Prince.

In the past year the Association was represented by the following members:

Francis B. Blanshard at the Forty-Seventh Annual Meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences, held in Philadelphia; Carl F. Taeusch at the inauguration of Dr. Patrick Joseph McCormick as Rector of the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

For the Board of Officers,

CORNELIUS KRUSÉ, Secretary

WESTERN DIVISION

President: D. S. Robinson

Vice-President: A. Cornelius Benjamin

Secretary-Treasurer: Horace S. Fries

Executive Committee: The foregoing officers and A. C. Garnett, George Gentry, and A. E. Murphy.

The Executive Committee of the Western Division again decided to postpone its Forty-fourth Annual Meeting because of wartime transportation difficulties. But it decided to hold by mail a spring election of officers and of new members. Accordingly, a nominating committee has been appointed to draw up a slate of candidates whose names will be presented to the members of the Division for their action in the regular spring letter. The Nominating Committee is composed of the following members: M. C. Otto, Chairman, E. L. Schaub, R. W. Sellars. The presumption is that the officers elected will serve until the next annual meeting.

In view of the postponement of the regular meeting it would be desirable for small groups to meet informally when opportunity offers.

The following is the report of the Committee on the Role of Philosophy in Higher Education, bearing the date of April 1943:

The death, last summer, of its organizer and chairman, Charles Perry, has been a major loss to this committee. The war has also played havoc with its membership. The essential subcommittee on the teaching of philosophy lost its chairman, D. S. Robinson, to the Navy, and of its regular members only Walker Hill, its secretary, continues. It has been reconstituted, however, and has not only carried on but has expanded its work. And there is reason to expect that in the coming year the work for which the Committee on the Role of Philosophy was established can be developed on a larger scale and under more favorable auspices than in the recent past.

The subcommittee continues its placement service, under wartime difficulties, and one more appointment has been made from the lists it supplies. Its study of the place of philosophy in the junior colleges, undertaken in collaboration with the American Association of Junior Colleges, is under way. It has also instituted an inquiry, among leaders in education, as to the way in which philosophy can most effectively serve in postwar education. It proposes to prepare a bibliography of literature on the teaching of philosophy, which should be of considerable use in the further study of this subject. It asks a continuance for another year of the appropriation by the Division of $125 to carry on its work. The committee has endorsed this program and request. It believes that the work of the subcommittee has been of notable value and that its continuance at this time is imperative.

It has become increasingly apparent that the whole problem of the function of philosophy in postwar education requires study and planning now, if we are to be at all prepared to meet the demands and difficulties with which we shall presently be confronted. The chairman of the committee instituted inquiries in January as to the manner in which such a study might best be undertaken and the possibility of securing a subsidy to support it. It was found that suggestions of a similar nature were being made in the Eastern Division and that a Commission was to be set up by the Association's National Board of Officers for just this purpose, with good prospects of substantial financial support. It has seemed best, therefore, to hold our own plans in abeyance until this Commission is constituted, and its relation to our Committee defined. As soon as these matters are settled, it will be the task of the committee to determine how best, in collaboration in the National Commission, it can contribute to this imperative work of postwar planning.

The Executive Committee nominated Victor F. Lenzen and John A. Irving for the offices of President and Vice-President respectively. They were elected.

The Executive Committee nominated John R. Reid for a two-year term on the Executive Committee. He was elected.

On recommendation of the Executive Committee the following were elected to active membership in the Division: Albert George Wiederhold, Max Horkheimer, John Henry Groth.

On recommendation of the Executive Committee Edward Schneider was elected to associate membership in the Division.

Vice-President: Katharine E. Gilbert

Secretary-Treasurer (pro tem.): Howard B. Jefferson

Executive Committee: The foregoing officers and Grace A. deLaguna ex officio for one year, Ernest Nagel (1944), Edna A. Shearer (1944), E. A. Burtt (1944), Irwin Edman (1944), J. H. Randall, Jr. (1945), John Wild (1945).

On November 1, 1943, President Brand Blanshard sent the following communication, in part, to members of the Division:

Association Meetings. Last year's annual meeting, which was to have been held at New Haven in December, was abandoned almost at the last moment. The reason was a request from the Office of Defense Transportation that all such meetings be cancelled. Wishing to find whether this request remained in full force, I inquired of the ODT in May what its attitude would be (a) to a meeting during the Christmas season of 1943, (b) to a meeting at some other time, when traffic would be less crowded. The reply in part was as follows:

"Travel during the Christmas period is always extremely heavy, and there certainly should be no conventions scheduled at that time. Please understand, however, that our request is to cancel all conventions and group meetings regardless of the time at which they are proposed to be held."

In the light of this reply, the Executive Committee felt that there was only one course to take. Reluctant as it was to see our annual meeting postponed again, it was sure the Division would not wish it to summon a meeting in the face of so urgent a request.

In the course of the summer, however, a new proposal came in which momentarily raised some hope. The proposal was that in lieu of the general meeting we hold three or four regional meetings, smaller in size, shorter in program, and geographically so placed as to require no one to travel long distances. On this plan sentiment within the Committee was divided. Half the members were ready to try it, but there was substantial opposition also; and it was felt that if there were like differences in the Division, the success of the plan would be doubtful.

The present position, then, is this: no meeting is in sight; and your Executive Committee feels that it should defer preparing one until, in the opinion of the ODT, it can proceed without injury to the war effort. We hope that in this we are interpreting your wish correctly. It goes without saying that we hold ourselves bound to arrange a meeting at the earliest practicable time.

Association Officers. The present panel of officers would like to know your mind as to whether we should stay at our posts. At the Vassar meeting of December, 1941, the following motion was passed: "That in the event no Divisional meeting is held in 1942, the officers elected at the present business meeting shall be continued in office for one more year." In about two months that 'one more year' will be over; after that we shall be usurpers; and even the more ethically hardened among us have felt some scruple at this. Our title to office rests on the vote of the members; yet we cannot call the members together to cast a vote. Under the circumstances, all that is left us is to consult your wishes by mail; and this we are now doing. Is it your will that we should go on? We shall do so if you wish it. On the other hand, we are quite willing to give place to another panel of officers if that should seem at all preferable.

One of the chief regrets in cancelling the 1942 meeting at Yale was the forgoing of the Latin-American Conference to which one of its sessions was to have been devoted. We are glad to say that this loss has been largely made good. Thanks to the energy of the original organizing committee, a two-day conference was held at New Haven on April 30 and May 1. About thirty philosophers attended, half of whom were Latin-Americans temporarily resident in this country, and the other half American scholars particularly interested in Latin-American thought. In spite of the three languages used, the conference was successful far beyond expectation. The papers presented are to be published in an early issue of the Journal of Phenomenology.

A committee of the Association was asked last year by the Office of Education in Washington to submit a report on the adjustments that might be made in the philosophical curriculum to wartime conditions. This report was duly submitted, and has been recently circulated by the Office of Education to department chairmen throughout the country.

The War Department is already preparing an educational program for use in the armed services during the difficult period between armistice and demobilization. One of the subjects to be offered in this program is philosophy; and a committee of the Association, under the chairmanship of Chancellor Tolley of Syracuse, has been given the novel task of preparing a course which shall be selfluminous, philosophically selfsufficient, and very largely selftaught. If the committee should succeed in bringing this off, the repercussions may well be wide.

Of more immediate concern to our members is the Commission on Philosophy, recently appointed by the Board of Officers of the three Divisions. The members of the Commission are trying to take their assignment with a seriousness equal—if that is possible—to its size; and they will certainly need the help of every member of the Association who has anything to suggest. You have no doubt already received a letter from the Secretary of the Commission, and if you have any convictions as to what the Commission should or should not do, please send them in.

If the services rendered by philosophers to the war effort were to be listed here, this letter would run to an impossible length. An exception may perhaps be made in favor of the Universities Committee on Postwar International Problems (40 Mt. Vernon St., Boston), which has at its head two former presidents of our Association. Professor R. B. Perry is the chairman. Professor A. O. Lovejoy, as vice-chairman, is issuing month by month a series of admirable analyses of major problems, which are being studied by faculty groups in scores of colleges and universities.

The Executive Committee hopes that by this time next year arrangements for another meeting may at last be under way. Certainly the skies look far brighter now than they did a year ago.

BRAND BLANSARD

The members voted by mail that the present officers should continue for another year, and the secretary informed each member of this result.
